Our story:

John Brooks Recovery Center is a private, not-for-profit corporation providing substance abuse services to the residents of New Jersey, particularly Atlantic County, since 1969. Our journey started when John Brooks, an Atlantic City resident, former heroin addict and ex-con came to the realization that if he stopped using heroin, he'd stop going to prison. Shortly thereafter, he was inspired to start a storefront outpatient program dedicated to helping individuals with substance use disorders. Originally called Narco, Inc., which later became the Institute for Human Development and eventually John Brooks Recovery Center, the nonprofit has since grown exponentially.

Our programs:

Traditional Outpatient Programs

These programs provide a combination of individual, group and family counseling designed for individuals who are able to pursue recovery goals with minimal support.

Intensive Outpatient Programs (IOP)

These programs provide a combination of individual, group and educational sessions to meet the recovery-oriented goals of an adult population. An IOP treatment day is three hours long and includes classroom didactic sessions, group and individual therapy.

Medication Assisted Treatment

This is a long-term approach to recovery requiring daily participation for medication with weekly counseling initially. As the individual stabilizes and makes progress toward recovery goals, the frequency of required attendance decreases based on clinical/medical staff assessments.

The Atlantic County Jail Inmate Re-entry Project

Our staff provides motivational counseling and referrals to alcohol or substance abuse treatment for inmates. The primary goal of this program is to reduce recidivism by linking inmates to appropriate treatment. This program is made possible in collaboration with Jewish Family Services.

Gambling Treatment Program

This program offers individual, group and psychoeducation counseling sessions designed to assist individuals with problem and disordered gambling.
